

Lynn Bloomer is the Chief of Staff and has been a member of the National Home team since 2018. She is also the Liaison of the Board of Trustees on behalf of the Executive Director. Lynn is responsible for the day-to-day functions and operations, working closely and guiding the workflow of the Director Team. She is responsible for planning and managing administrative and operational activities as well as project management and strategic planning processes for the Executive Director.

Lynn has over 10 years managerial experience, leadership skills, and demonstrable experience managing high-profile projects. Lynn plays a crucial role in preparing and guiding activities on campus with the Trustees, as well as the Director Team. Additionally, she directly supervises the executive staff including the Information Systems Manager, and Historian.

Lynn's experience extends from previous employment at The State of Michigan, Jackson National Life, several IT Consulting companies in both the Lansing and Detroit area and brings a wealth of Office Management/Project Management and Operational Support experience to the National Home.

Lynn holds a BA degree from Central Michigan University in Sociology and is still undecided on what she wants to be when she grows up. Lynn is a military spouse, whose husband (Don) has been serving in the military since 1989. Lynn and Don have 4 boys and one granddaughter. They enjoy camping and being outdoors in nature.
